

INNOVATIVE WORKPLACES

Friday
15th October 2010

innovative workplaces
Developing Organisations for the Future

A highly interactive symposium exploring leading-edge employee engagement

Registration 13.00
Symposium
13.30-17.00

- ◆ An overview of future directions in employee engagement and workplace innovation led by Professor Peter Totterdill
- ◆ Special keynote address by Sharon Darwent, Head of Employee Engagement, BT
- ◆ An interactive panel discussion featuring examples of innovative change.
- ◆ Forum Theatre - an exciting resource for engagement and innovation

The Rose Theatre, High Street, Kingston-upon-Thames KT1 1HL
(10 minutes walk from Kingston railway station)

LIMITED PLACES!

APPLY FOR A PLACE NOW!
£25 per delegate. Invoices will be issued on registration.

More information?
Phone 0115 933 8321
E-mail info@ukwon.net

Kingston University London Email mary.wade@ukwon.net

Employee Engagement - the key to sustainable success

An engaged workforce is no longer just nice to have: it's about survival. Evidence from across the world shows that organisations with engaged workforces perform significantly better than those without - and that they are much more resilient against the challenges posed by the state of the global economy. Employee engagement is not just about HR: it's about productivity, innovation and quality as well as about looking after your workforce.

The problem is how to achieve it.

Employee engagement is not just another fad or initiative. High levels of engagement happen when every aspect of the organisation's practices are aligned.

Learn about how you can make this happen. Listen to those who are achieving it - from BT to a medium sized construction company. Share ideas and experiences.

JOIN US: 15TH OCTOBER AT THE ROSE THEATRE